

Advisement Program

The Camden County High Advisement program is designed to provide each student the opportunity to have teachers and counselors explain the different school programs and graduation plans. This program is designed to be an on-going process throughout the student's high school career. Counselors will also work with the parents to explain what the student might expect from various programs and how these programs will enable the student to reach his/her career goals.

During the advisement process, each student will be furnished a Career Planning and Course Selection Guide. This guide includes explanations of the different diploma plans and graduation requirements leading to each type of diploma. This guide also includes an outline of the various programs of study and course descriptions. The guidance staff utilizes individual counseling, group sessions, and classroom guidance to carry out the advisement program. All students have access to both the guidance department and administrative staff for additional assistance when examining and selecting courses of study. In addition, homeroom teachers serve as advisers and resource persons for their assigned homerooms. As part of the advisement program, counselors confer with teachers concerning achievement of students and best placement leading to timely graduation. Recommendations for changes in student schedules are made to students and parents in an effort to determine the most appropriate level of instruction for future success.
